SIGHTSEEING

Aizkraukle Hillfort

The hillfort is approximately 100 meters long, 40 meters above the level of the Daugava River, and about 67 meters above sea level. The hillfort is mentioned several times in 13th-century written sources. The site of an ancient church can be seen at the foot of the hillfort. A parking lot has been established near the hillfort. At its summit, a rest area has been set up, offering a scenic view of the Daugava River valley.

Andrejs Upits Memorial House and Garden

The writer Andrejs Upits lived in the house from 1908 to 1915 and spent his summers there from 1922 to 1940. After the writer's death, the house became a branch of the Andrejs Upits Memorial Museum. Surrounding the museum is the garden planted by the writer, where his beloved ash trees, red-leaved maples, walnut trees and oaks grow.

Skriveri Dendrological Park

In the past, the park was planted with various tree species from the temperate climate zone of the entire Northern Hemisphere. Today, approximately 250 of these tree species can be seen in the park. The castle stairs, a stone card table, a tea terrace, a fountain, and the ruins of the castle courtyard have been preserved from the manor's heyday.

Great Oak "Lielais Andrejs"

A natural and cultural historical monument offering a sweeping view of the ancient Divāja Valley. The oak tree was unveiled in the summer of 1976 by the poet Imants Ziedonis together with his son Rimants. In honor of the 100th anniversary of the writer Andrejs Upits, it was named "Lielais Andrejs" a year later.

Mural "Midsummer Night"

The mural "Midsummer Night" by master artists Laimdots Mūrnieks and Uldis Zemzars was created in 1958. In 1961, when the building of the Latvian Institute of Agricultural Research was constructed and opened in Skriveri, the painting was displayed in the institute's hall. When the institute moved to smaller premises, one of the sections of the panorama was retained. The remaining five sections were donated to the Skriveri Cultural Center.

Kurelians' Memorial Stone

The Kurelians' Movement began on July 28, 1944, at the "Robežas" estate in Skriveri, where soldiers and young people gathered to form the so-called Skriveri Battalion, numbering several hundred. A memorial to the Kurelians has since been established in Skriveri along the Divājas iela–Mucenieki road, leading toward the "Robežas" estate, created at the initiative of local retirees.
